INCORPORATED

HULL ACES.

During the past winter, players of the Hull Aces senior team decided to break away. They have formed a club to be known as Hull Mets.

Hull Aces were formed in the late 1940's, and have had some changes of name, for instance when I first became acquainted with the club it was East Hull Aces. Under the name of East Hull, Kingston, or Hull Aces, the club has appeared in 13 National Cup finals from 1959 to 1981; winning on four occasions.

My first contact with the club was early in 1963, this was at the time when the club was seeking support for the launching of a National League. The concept was not acceptable to clubs in the South of England, for the simple reason that they had sufficient numbers to play a satisfactory programme of games without travelling outside of the South. Hull Aces however had to overcome the problem of having only three other clubs in Hull to provide local opposition, for what that was worth. Aces had won the Hull League title for several years in succession. Don Smallwood the club secretary was finding it increasingly difficult to motivate club members due to lack of interesting games in Hull, hence the desire to launch a National League.

In 1963 the club achieved a partial success, a number of clubs in other areas did combine to form the National League. That first season, East Hull Aces, Stretford Saints (Manchester), Broms Grove, Austin British Legion (Birmingham), Coventry Blue Sox, and Nottingham Athletics competed. I saw one game - Austin British Legion v. East Hull Aces at Birmingham - and was very impressed by the way that East Hull Aces was organised and the manner in which the club presented itself. The reverse impression was created by Austin British Legion.

Stretford Saints won the National League championship in seasons 1963, 64, 65. In 1963 they impressed me as making a real contribution to the National League, they not only played well, but looked a well organised and presented club; this was while George Livesey was secretary. When he finished with the club it started to decline as far as presentation was concerned.

Stretford Saints, and Hull Aces are the only British clubs to have competed for the European Cup. Stretford on one occasion, Aces on two. Stretford had some financial assistance from a Dutch club when they competed in a North European pool in Rotterdam. Hull Aces paid all their own expenses on their two visits to Europe to play in the competition. They entered for a third time, and were "lucky" to be drawn at home to the Italian champion club Europhon Milano, this was in 1969. Imagine the shock that Hull received when some weeks before Europhon were to have played at Hull, Aces received an invoice from the Italian club for the equivalent of £950 to cover travelling expenses. There was no way that Aces could pay such an amount, so Europhon had a walk-over into the next round, eventually emerging as cup winners.

At the time that I became acquainted with the club in the '60's, all the members were under pressure, most of all Don Smallwood. The club had no subscription for playing members. All funds at that time were being raised by operating a bingo club in a Co-op. Hall. The bingo operated on four evenings a week through the year, and members had to devote some evenings each week to running the bingo club. I am sure that Don Smallwood was at the bingo every evening.

During the spring and summer the club was running bingo for four evenings a week, practised on another two evenings, and during the season played baseball most Saturdays and Sundays.

In the late 60's the club managed to persuade the authority of Kingston-upon-Hull to provide an authentic diamond in a local recreation ground, this is known as the Alderman Kneeshaw baseball ground. This was a great step forward, although in retrospect it could have been an even greater step forward, if the baseball ground had been laid out somewhere where sufficient space was available. It was fitted into an area which had been planned to Jukka Ropponen was president of the FBSF upon its formation, wishing to devote more time to his club Puumat, he has stood down; the new president is Erkki Lampelaho (Pumaat). Erkki is anxious to encourage boys' baseball, and is seeking second-hand baseball equipment in the U.S.A. to overcome the expense problem for youngsters.

Member clubs of the FBSF are Puumat, Kintaro, Fighters, Zebras, Sluggers, and Espoo from Esbo. Abo Bases, pioneers of the game in Finland, have ceased to exist.

Pesapallo a game combining elements of Finnish games with some aspects of baseball is a highly popular sport. It has about 100,000 players, and attracts a total of over 1,000,000 spectators to games of the first division. The game has nine fielders on the field, three outs to an inning, nine innings in a game.

In the event of a tie, extra innings are played, but if the game is tied at the end of 12 innings, then the tie stands. Each team has a squad of 12 players, players can be moved in and out of the game as in basketball.

A plan of the field can be seen to the right.

BELGIUM.

Baseball was introduced to Belgium by Japanese sailors of the MARU line. When in port at Antwerp they played the game as a recreation on the Wilrijkse Plein. Antwerp youths were attracted to watch them. In 1923, two Japanese, Miyata and Kubo, formed the first Belgian club - The Antwerp Baseball Club. This club exists still, now known as Antwerp Eagles; and is celebrating its 60 years of history by organising the Intercontinental Cup Tourney.

Slowly but surely other clubs came into existence, Bell Telephone, and General Motors in 1930. In 1930 the first competition began, the three clubs not only played each other, but also frequently played teams from the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Navigation Co. From 1934 until 1939 international games were played regularly against The Netherlands.

The Belgian Baseball Federation was formed in 1948; the earlier internationals had been played by teams selected by Bell Telephone. There are currently 1,500 ballplayers in Belgium belonging to 15 clubs.

As for the Intercontinental Cup Tourney, this was requested originally by Italy. Antwerp Eagles decided to invite four of the participants to play in a tournament as part of Antwerp Eagles sixtieth anniversary celebrations. Italy had to withdraw its invitation to stage the Intercontinental Cup, as C.E.B.A. decided to stage the 1983 European championship in Italy. It looked as if Eagles plan would fail. However the club decided to attempt to secure the Inter-

-continental Cup Tourney as its celebratory event. There was competition from Taiwan where baseball is a major pastime, whereas in Belgium a major domestic game might draw 400 fans. There were political factors working against Taiwan, and Belgium was granted the right to organise the Cup tourney.

The tournament is to cost Belgium about £180,000. It is hoped that this major event will stimulate interest in Belgium, where the game has made little impact; even today it is confined to the Greater Antwerp area.

The Antwerp Eagles field will have temporary seating for 6,500 spectators. As the field has no lights week day games will begin at 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. At the weekend three games will be played each day. The organisers expect to attract many spectators from the South of The Netherlands.

VISITORS FROM THE U.S.A.

In 1982 a team from Texas, the Burkburnett Black Sox played a number of games in the Midlands, and on Humberside. They appeared first at the Holme Pierrepont Sports Centre, in co-operation with the Sports Council and the Nottingham Evening Post, the Texans coached some 200 boys and girls. Their second venue was the Oak-tree Lane Sports ground, Mansfield, where some 500 people attended. They then played at Newark, yet another success, about 600 people came along. Their opponents in these Midlands games were the Clifton Cougars. Two more games were played in the Midlands, one at the Costhorpe Recreation ground, Worksop, which drew 400 - 500 spectators.

Mr. B. Benson, the BBSF National Youth Officer, received many congratulatory letters regarding these games from persons such as the Lord Mayor of Nottingham, the High Sherriff of Nottingham, members of Parliament, including one from a member of the European Parliament, Mr. Michael Gallagher, and the two newspapers in the Nottingham area.

Another team to visit the U.K. was Rawlings All-Stars, this team was drawn from two high schools in Ohio, and organised and coached by Jim Humpal. Jim Humpal had coached the U.S.A. Youth team in the World Friendship Series in 1981.

Rawlings was sponsored by the famous sports goods firm, and impressed by their superb baseball. They played an exciting game in the Midlands versus Garringtons' Dodgers. In the South of England Rawlings played games versus London Warriors, Essex Raiders, and Crawley. The visitors impressed by their skill and their discipline, and all their games were won by large margins.

Another visiting club was West Coast, this club played Croydon Bluejays, and Crawley Giants; west Coast was of quite a good standard, players were aged from seventeen to twenty-two; but were not up to the level of Rawlings All-Stars.

This summer a Pittsburgh Pirates junior team will be based at Cobham, Surrey, from 19th. to 25th. July; they will play three games, and undertake coaching sessions. Doug Brown and W. Beckwith are responsible for the arrangements.
